虽然有2006年的赛季回顾，但未包含具体的比赛结果和数据。
The 2007 Bloomsburg lacrosse team can be finishing 6-11 overall and 6-6 in the PSAC, the Huskies are back and, with a new head coach, a new crop of talented freshmen and even a new turf field in Bloomsburg's Sports Stadium.

First-year head coach Leah Quigley is no stranger to PSAC lacrosse. A four-year member of East Stroudsburg’s team, Quigley scored 129 goals and assisted on 60 in her career. The former lacrosse Rookie of the Year feels that her experience will be the difference for her team and will result in a coaching change. “I’ve played in the PSAC, so I am familiar with the coaches and schools in the conference. I have also played against some of these women so I know their potentials and capabilities.”

Although the season promises many changes for the Bloomsburg squad, a core of experienced players return for the 2007 season. Four seniors will lead the Huskies in their quest for a conference championship. On defense, All-American and PSAC player of the year Brittany Wilkins returns for her senior year. Wilkins, the Huskies top defender for last season, is joined by senior Allicia Trotter, a vocal leader on the field. Wilkins and Trotto combined for 61 ground balls and 37 caused turnovers in 2006. Rounding out the senior class are Megan Taylor and Alison McFartridge. Taylor returns to the attack as one of the team’s leading scorers in 2006 with 28 goals and seven assists. McFartridge is a strong player that Quigley will look for in the midfield.

In addition to four seniors, a strong junior class will be back for the Huskies. Leading scorer Calli Toms returns for her third year as a starter. A two-time All-PSAC selection, Toms has great stick skills and will control the midfield for Bloomsburg. Also returning for the Huskies is Angie Picciotti, who is expected to pick up where she left off last season in the midfield.

In goal, junior Bridget Maenner and sophomore Justine Coleman both return, and will split time. The duo had a 13.52 goals against average in 2006 and combined for 159 saves.

Although the Huskies will suffer due to the absence of Sam Alexander who will sit out the year with an injury, an experienced sophomore class will be back on the field for Bloomsburg. On attack, Kelsey Quigley returns after scoring 15 goals and assisting on six a year ago. Quigley will be another go-to player that can create scoring opportunities. Midfielder and defender Cara McCarroll will also return for the Huskies after starting all 17 games in her freshman season. On defense, Lindsey Dingus is expected to step up with Andrea Schweitzer looking for increased playing time. Mary Chirichella will also join the fight for space on the attack.

Also on defense, there is a strong group of returning players, there are also five freshmen joining the Huskies this season. Kimberly Studio, a versatile player with good speed and an aggressive style, will see significant time in the midfield. Erica Nevin is also expected to contribute right away, playing midfield and defense while Beth Stewart will look for playing time after sitting out the fall recovering from surgery. In addition, Rachel Heil and Megan Moran will battle for time on the attack.

Playing on a new $1.5 million dollar multi-purpose, lighted stadium will also change the game plan for the Huskies. The turf will change the style of play to quicker pace with different shot opportunities. Quigley is excited for the change and thinks the new style will be beneficial “It will be more of a consistent game. When you’re going for ground ball pick up, you’re not worried about bumps or dives created. It’s all the same.”

Another change in the style of play comes from Quigley. This season, she plans to work on the team’s transition game, moving the Huskies to a style often seen in men’s lacrosse.

Bloomburg opens the season with a non-conference schedule highlighted by Gannon and Mercyhurst and then will jump right into the tough PSAC action.

Overall, the future is bright for the Huskies. Quigley sees this season as a transition year, but still expects the team to compete for a spot in the conference tournament. “You have to build a program and you can’t change something over night. I’ve told these players that they have to work with me and learn what it’s all about, then we can go places. I’m very excited and I think they are excited too. From what I saw in the fall, all their hard work is paying off.”
